SEASON 2023/24 OVERVIEW

The European Leagues Association and its members are glad to present to the football community their annual overview of Domestic League Competitions ahead of the start of the 2023/24 football season.

The 2022/23 season marked the end of the global covid pandemic, with unprecedented challenges and a profound impact on European football. With the termination of all public restrictions in stadiums, fans were back in football arenas cheering and supporting their team while showing love to our beautiful game. As a result, many leagues experienced an increase in fans attendance, with some of them haling historical numbers while beating their all-time records.

The upcoming season will be back to the classic scheduling for all European domestic leagues after the unprecedented FIFA World Cup held in winter, which caused several challenges to the organisation of a congested calendar for our competitions. This report represents the perfect opportunity to present the new calendar and the players' transfer windows for each domestic league across Europe while providing an update on the changes which were implemented by a few of our members when it comes to the format of their competitions. It is also the occasion to celebrate our new members who joined the European Leagues during the 2022-23 season. Our Association is honored and ready to support the football and business development of the recently created professional leagues in Albania and Malta and the revamped professional league in Bulgaria. We do also welcome their 40 affiliated clubs to play an active role in our refreshed Club Advisory Platform (CAP). The European Leagues Association now comprises 40 member leagues and association of clubs who represents more than 1000 professional football clubs across Europe.

As we dive into the analysis of the upcoming season, it is impossible to forget how the football world was recently shaken by the proposed breakaway club competition that threatened the European football pyramid and the core values of our sport. The unanimous rejection of this project by the whole football community showcased the strength and power of fans, players, clubs, leagues, and national associations in standing together in the face of adversity. We are confident the European football stakeholders will show the same unity when they will be called during the upcoming months to stand for the protection and enhancement of both financial and sporting competitive balance, which are essential elements for the sustainable and long-term development of professional club football in the future. Similar cohesion will be fundamental to tackle together the violent acts of very few misbehaving "fans" we experienced this season within and in the surrounding of some European stadiums.

Finally, a few words for the Ukrainian Premier League who in the middle of severe and dramatic circumstances was capable to deliver to the people of Ukraine a message of resilience and hope with the organisation of an outstanding football championship which terminated at the very last match- day of the season. The European Leagues and its members stand with the UPL and are proud to contribute to the realization of its competitions during this adverse period.

On behalf of the European Leagues, we extend our gratitude to all colleagues and professionals involved in making the 2022/23 league season possible. May the 2023/24 campaign be remembered as a successful and remarkable one, on and off the pitches.

Let the game begins!
